COUNTY FLOOD CONTROL BASIN

On February 6, 2010, a 1,000 gallon aboveground storage tank was reportedly dislodged in San Bernardino County Flood Control District property known as Colonies Basin No. 6, after the basin had filled with storm water as a result of recent rains.

The aboveground storage tank contained an undisclosed amount of diesel fuel that was released into the basin. The tank was being used by contractor Bert W. Salas, Inc., who is performing rip-rap and grading work in the basin. On February 8, Bert W. Salas, Inc., captured what it could of the released diesel fuel and contaminated debris, and removed the tank and pump from the basin.

California Department of Fish and Game and the California Regional Water Quality Control Board, Santa Ana Region, have been notified. There is no evidence that drinking water supplies have been impacted by this release.
